Dr. Rockwell appointed acting dean of college

With the arrival of October 1st, Dr. Donald M. Rockwell assumed his new duties as acting dean of academic affairs and Dr. Morley J. Mays became President of Elizabethtown College, Elizabethtown, Pa.

Dr. Mays was named academic dean of Juniata College in 1948 and also served as professor of philosophy. He became vice-president for academic affairs in 1963.

The faculty and staff and student body of Juniata wish Dr. Mays and Elizabethtown College every success.

Dr. Rockwell was selected at a recent meeting of the executive committee of the Juniata College board of trustees to fill the vacancy of Dean on a temporary basis.

It was made clear by President Calvert N. Ellis that Dr. Rockwell was not a candidate for the office and that the board of trustees would continue its search, both within the faculty and in other directions.

Dr. Rockwell will continue his pres-

To all our friends —

A new look—and a new policy. With this issue of the JUNIATA BULLETIN, we introduce a new editor, a promise of four issues each year and a publishing policy to include all aspects of Juniata news for alumni and friends of the College.

In a time of rapid growth, we are striving to advance our service to students through Christian higher education. We take this opportunity to keep our friends informed about significant campus happenings.

We will be very glad to add to our list of readers any you may suggest. Wherever there is interest in Juniata College, we wish it to grow and expand.

Juniata beneficiary of numerous grants

The arrival of the time of flight mass spectrometer from the E. I. DuPont de Nemours Company dramatized the fact that Juniata has been the beneficiary recently of a number of generous grants and loans.

The mass spectrometer will make it possible to analyze samples for the mass of the component molecules, according to Dr. Dale L. Wampler, chairman of the chemistry department. The coordinator for the DuPont Company was Mr. Daniel Hamblin of the Experimental Station in Wilmington, Delaware.

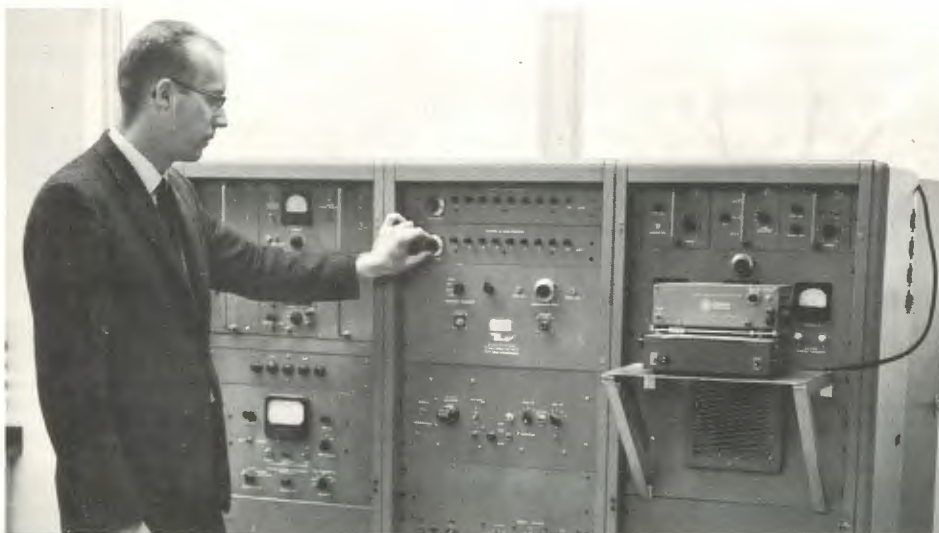

The Chemistry Department also received an unrestricted grant from the Gulf Oil Corporation. The grant is one of 63 that Gulf is distributing this year to selected departments in as many universities and colleges under the Company's Aid to Education Program.

Another grant of $1,000 per year was received from the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States. The chairman of the board of Equitable, James Oates Jr., said "the Society has long recognized the excellent academic standing of Juniata College . . ."

Under Title VI of the Higher Education Act of 1965, Juniata received $7,004 which is to be matched by the College. These funds will be used to purchase needed equipment including projectors, calculators and a library photo-copier.

Library resources at Juniata will be further strengthened by the receipt of $5,000 under Title II of the Higher Education Act. This amount must also be matched by the College.

The Penn Central Equipment Company has made an unrestricted grant as has the Johns-Mansville Corporation. These grants are applied to the Development Program whose director is Gerald Quigg.

Juniata fills a need

by DR. CHARLES W. SCHOENHERR
Dean of Student Affairs

Dr. Charles W. Schoenherr has quickly won the respect of his colleagues and the student body, making it appear that Juniata has always had a Dean of Student Affairs.

Dr. Schoenherr is responsible for the development and administration of the program in student services, extra-curricular activities, and various student groups in relation to current social and institutional issues.

A graduate of Wheaton College (B.S. 1950), Dr. Schoenherr had been director of admissions at Wheaton since 1959. Previously he served as dean of men at Wheaton (1953-56).

Dr. Schoenherr earned his M.A. degree in guidance at Northwestern University (1954) and in 1965, he received his Doctor of Education degree from Teachers College, Columbia University, New York.

He is married to the former Margaret D. Landon and they have five children.

In the minds of some people, what Juniata needs least is another Dean. Ten or fifteen years ago when the College was smaller than it is now, and the students were what they were, this feeling might have gained considerable support. However, this is 1966 and because of today's pressing demands, birth has been given to a new office at Juniata—the Dean of Student Affairs. It was a planned birth with a gestation period of at least five years, maybe more. In 1961 when the school engaged in an extensive self-study for reevaluation by a team from the regional accreditation association, one of the areas identified as needing further attention was student personnel services.

These comments were taken from the committee report of the faculty study group:

At Juniata College student personnel services might be defined to include the area of counseling, housing, discipline, food service, student health and safety, student activities (including the Senate and Judiciary), inter-collegiate athletics, placement, the student union, and special services. Presently, the responsibilities for directing and carrying out these many services are scattered through the entire organization. There exists no centralized group of policy makers for these functions and there is little or no coordination in the implementation of such policy as does exist.

The group proposed two alternatives to meet the need, 1) the appointment of a faculty committee to handle student affairs, or 2) the appointment of a Dean of Students to do likewise. Obviously, the latter suggestion was adopted.

The major functions of the new office are to coordinate student activities and to provide leadership at the administrative and student levels for policies directly affecting students. Responsible to the Dean of Students are the Dean of Men, Dean of Women, Minister to Students, Director of Residence Halls, Health Service, the Director of Student Activities, and the Director of Financial Aid and Placement. These offices, with the exception of the last one, have been the responsibility of the Dean of the College. Financial aid was administered by the Treasurer's office. This load placed upon the Dean of the College, in addition to his responsibilities for the faculty and the academic program, was too great. The change organizationally is sound, but this isn't the only basis on which it was made.

Juniata's needs have been changing. When the enrollment was 700, the demands for student services were different from those of today when the enrollment is more than 1100. Adding 400 students to a multi-university is one thing, adding the same number to a small college is something different. Both schools need to provide physical facilities, but for the small school, it is not just adding another dormitory or classroom building. It is this, plus the problem of maintaining the traditions and customs which the school considers her own distinctives. Convocations, sit-down meals, all school socials (like Mountain Day), student government, faculty-student relationships and the President's desire to call each student by his first name are in jeopardy when the small college becomes larger.

Juniata's Main Purpose

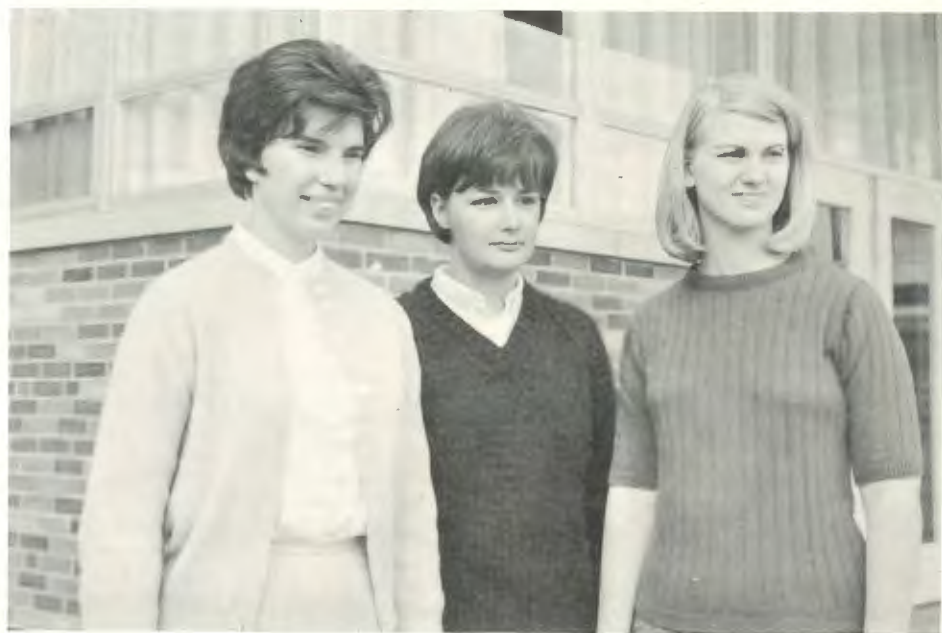

We intend to protect this heritage by preventing organizational and bureaucratic procedures from obscuring the main purpose of Juniata's existence—the education of the total student. The Office of the Dean of Students was established in the rapid growth years as one means of insuring the full development of the student which has always been the concern of the faculty and the administration.

There is another reason, beside the growth one, for the creation of the office. Students have changed. Ten years ago, college students were known as the "silent generation," a generation without a common cause, or the "beat generation." The "squares" were those who considered "good causes" and excellence worthy of their energies, time and devotion. Excesses were expended in panty raids, hazing and other student activities which now provide resource material for laughter at Alumni gatherings. It was an apathetic generation of students, and older critics chided them for being unable to become excited about their world.

Students Are Concerned

Then came the revolution. One writer put it this way, "We wanted the young to be idealistic, perhaps somewhat radical, possibly even a bit militant—but not like this!" We got what we asked for, and now we are not sure how to handle it. No longer do we find students silent, beat or conforming. They are outspoken, concerned about social issues, and active in many causes such as sit-ins, write-ins, drive-ins, lay-downs, etc. They want a voice and a vote in their educational futures. They protest administrative policies which appear unfair and which threaten their concept of freedom. They are quick to join causes. If they were a silent generation in the fifties, they are an awakened generation of the sixties.

They are the students of today. These are Juniata students. Their enthusiasm, idealism, concern for freedom and courage to revolt must be directed and channeled into responsible and acceptable ways. The addition of a Dean of Students to the staff is one way Juniata is responding to this need of the sixties.

Open door on world at United Nations

An inside view of the United Nations in operation is the exciting experience of three Juniata College students now participating in the UN Semester at Drew University.

The students are Joyce Rosenberger, R. Mark Faulkner and Paul Baker, all juniors. Three days a week are spent on the Drew campus with research and seminars, and two days are spent in New York observing the UN in action.

Talks with members of UN commissions, officials of the world organization, and opportunities to attend meetings, are included in the semester course.

One of the chief benefits of the program is the introduction of students to non-western cultures and the various points of view regarding world problems.

Shortly after arrival, in early September, the Juniata students had an opportunity to hear Ambassador Arthur Goldberg present the United States position on the Vietnam War and possible peace negotiations.

Focus series again offers outstanding events

The popular Focus series is offering the public, faculty and students a rich variety of free events including art, music, films and lectures. The schedule through the fall and winter is as follows:

Oct. 14 to Nov. 4

Shoemaker Galleries

Fourteenth National Print
Exhibition

Nov. 17

Oller Hall

Circle in the Square
"The White Devil"

Nov. 28 to Dec. 18

Shoemaker Galleries

Maine—50 Artists of the 20th Century

Dec. 2

Oller Hall

The Goldovsky Grand Opera
Theatre
"Rigoletto"

Feb. 2

Oller Hall

Godfrey Sperling, Jr.
Lecture

The exhibitions are on view from 10 a. m. to 12 noon, 2 to 5 p. m., Tuesday through Friday; Saturday and Sunday, 2 to 5 p. m. and closed all day Monday. All performances in Oller Hall begin at 8:15 p. m.

Campus expands with growing enrollment

Juniata College began its 91st academic year with 1078 degree students and 27 non-degree students according to Registrar John V. Hollinger. This is an increase of 6½ per-cent over last year.

Of this total 343 are new students. There are fifteen new faculty on hand to greet representatives of 12 states.

Parents Day, October 22, will see the dedication of the new Tussey and Terrace Dormitory Complex for 176 men. This complex is built on a new plan for Juniata buildings. The rooms are all on the outside and the wash-rooms are in the center.

Included in the wings are an office and two apartments, a large lounge and a game room.

The Dormitory, similar in appearance to the other buildings on campus, is built of red brick with white trim.

Homecoming '66 has oriental theme

Oriental mystique is the theme given Homecoming which will take place November 11, 12 and 13 and will include such non-oriental features as football, pep-rally and bonfire, and a breakfast of country sausage for those who prefer this delicacy to pancakes.

There will be a presentation of "Tea House of the August Moon" in Oller Hall both Friday and Saturday evening.

Shattering this attempt at oriental atmosphere will be a Jazz Mass in Oller Hall on Sunday morning.

However more traditional fare is on tap for those who prefer a typical autumn homecoming.

The Shoemaker Galleries will offer the Graphic Works of Michael Mazur. A new campus open house has been arranged and there will be a parade into downtown Huntingdon.

Moravian and J. C. football teams will hold their 20th meeting on College Field. A dance is scheduled for both Friday and Saturday evenings.

Alumni are urged to return reservation forms received recently by November 7.

Brethren Campus Day

Scheduled for Saturday, November 12, during Homecoming weekend, is Brethren Campus Day.

President Calvert N. Ellis will address the parents and college minded high school students, ministers of the church and youth counselors, in the Stone Church at 10 a. m.

The Juniata College Admissions Staff will meet with students and parents, there will be a tour of the campus and the visitors will be guests of the college at luncheon.

Alumni and parents tours announced

The first annual Juniata College Alumni Tour came to a successful completion when 40 travelers returned to Kennedy Airport after a three week tour of Europe.

The Juniata group, under the direction of Harold B. Brumbaugh '33, vice-president for development, visited France, Italy, Switzerland, Germany and England.

Plans for a Juniata College Parents Tour during the summer of 1967 have been completed. Friends and Juniata students will be included. The Alumni Tour will leave on July 11 and the Parents Tour on July 18. Mr. P. M. Snider '26 will accompany the group as a host guide; however, the European tour will be directed by an experienced courier. This arrangement will assure professional leadership as well as personal attention for the relaxed enjoyment of the journey.

Among the famous cities to be visited are: Paris, Baden Baden, Lucerne, Nice, Rome, Florence, Amsterdam, London and Stratford-on-Avon.

The flight from New York and return is by Trans World Airlines.

Additional information may be obtained by writing to Harold Brumbaugh, Juniata College.

Juniata Sports

Pre-season predictions for JC's football team looked especially favorable, this outlook having been based on 26 returning lettermen, three promising transfers, stronger sophs who saw much action last year, and a larger corps of freshmen than has come out for the gridiron sport in many years.

But this bigger team had a rough beginning, dropping the opener 13-7 to Albright and losing the second on a rain-soaked and muddy field to Upsala 15-10. This was the situation as of press time.

The offensive backfield which has been tagged as the biggest and fastest in Juniata's history just had trouble moving the ball against Albright and Upsala. The defense, however, which earlier was considered to be the weak spot, has been turning in fine performances.

Coach Prender is working two platoons this season, with great depth hoping to prove this system satisfactory.

On the offensive line are junior Denny Albright of Ephrata at tight end; senior Bob Pascale of Bristol at split end; senior Dick Feigles of

The defensive unit fields juniors Nate Mitchell of Mt. Union and Ron Favinger of Pottstown at end; junior Rich Stoutland of Wilmington, Del., and soph Cliff Berg of Doylestown at tackle; soph Dave Fleck of Coraopolis and junior Regis Schivley of Elizabeth at the linebacker slot; and junior Bob Vanyo of Johnstown at middle guard.

In the defensive backfield are freshman Pete Straup of King of Prussia; soph Randy Oeffner of Huntingdon; junior Chris Sherk of Mt. Joy; and senior Gary Sheppard of Philadelphia.

Larry Bieber, the senior soccer-style kicker from Hummelstown, has boot-ed one field goal and two extra points in the first two games. In a scrimmage against Indiana, however, Bieber set one flying 54 yards to top any previous boots by a JC player.

Rick Beard of Annville, JC's top point getter on the cross-country course, approaching the finish line at College Field.

Cross Country

If the showing of the Juniata cross-country team in the first two meets (as of press time) is any indication of what's to come, Mike Snider's runners may have their first winning season since 1963. Soph Rick Beard of Annville again is leading the pack, having clocked in first against Albright and Indiana. In the latter meet, Beard bested his record by seven seconds with a 25:40 time.

Phil Sipling, soph from York, who is putting in his first year as a cross-country runner, has been placing among the first five. Four promising freshmen also have been looking strong: Kerry Stanley of Bethlehem; Jeff Johnston of King of Prussia; John Snyder of Lebanon; and Aubrey Shenk of Cleona.

Others on the squad are junior co-captain Tom Berkley of Somerset; senior co-captain Tom Creighton of Altoona; juniors Jim Massingham of Orelan; Win Harris of Strafford; and Sid Lansberry of Clearfield.

A new look on the Juniata gridiron are the all-white uniforms with large blue numerals. For years the Tribe has worn gold pants. The familiar Indian on the side of the helmets also was replaced with a gold feather up the middle.

The annual meeting of the Delaware Redmen will be held Monday, November 14, at the Woodbine Inn, Cherry Hill, N. J.

Social hour will start at 6:00 p. m.; dinner at 7:00 p. m. and meeting at 8 p. m.

All Philadelphia, Delaware and South Jersey male alumni (classes of 1950 to 1966) are invited. Tom Nolan will be the featured speaker.

Juniata Briefs

Circulation and Reference Librarian Margaret Whitehill attended professional meetings the first part of the summer and then had a radical change to end her vacation. In July she was in New York for the American Library Association Conference and New Brunswick, N. J. for the Pre-Conference On Non-Western Studies in Liberal Arts Colleges. But in August she was part of the American Forestry Association's Trail Rider of the Wilderness outing in Colorado.

Martin E. Hoover, new associate professor of Physics attended the National Science Foundation's Relativity Conference at Walla Walla College, Washington.

Mrs. Lois R. Fox, instructor in home economics, has received the degree Master of Education from the College of Human Development of the Pennsylvania State University.

Appointed Assistant Professor in the College of Engineering and Science at Carnegie Institute of Technology is David Lee Weaver '61, who expects to receive his Ph.D. from M. I. T. this month.

On leave from the campus are: Dr. Miriam A. Schlegel, professor of education, is Director of Brethren Colleges Abroad, West Germany; Bernice Heller, associate professor of Spanish, studying at Indiana University; Max N. Heller, assistant professor of mathematics, also at Indiana University; Margaret A. Gray, assistant professor of biology, to Princeton Theological Seminary.

President Ellis has been appointed a member of the Higher Education Advisory Committee to the Education Commission of the States. The first meeting took place early in September in Washington with President Elvis Stahr, Indiana University, as chairman of the group.

Ronn Kink '58, public relations director of the Pennsylvania State Library, Harrisburg, will be executive director for the 1967 National Library Week Program in Pennsylvania. Fink is a former news editor of the Bedford County Press, Everett, and a staff reporter for the Johnstown Tribune-Democrat. He joined the State Library Staff in 1962.

Dr. Young W. Kihl, assistant professor of political science delivered an article on "Technology, Air Transport and the ICAO" to the Secretariat of International Civil Aviation Organization, a United Nations specialized agency, in Montreal, Canada. He also attended the annual meeting of the American Political Science Association in New York City, September 6 to 10th.

Dr. Homer Will has retired as faculty marshal and his place has been taken by Dr. Wilfred G. Norris, associate professor of physics. Dr. Will, professor of biology, emeritus, is teaching a course in entomology. He became faculty marshal during World War II although his arrival at Juniata was in 1927. Dr. Will earned his B.A. from Bridgewater College, his M.A. from the University of Virginia and a Ph.D. from the University of Pittsburgh.

Much of Europe was covered by Dr. Evelyn G. Guss, associate professor of classics whose travels last summer included Italy, Greece, Austria, Germany, Holland, Denmark, Norway and England.

Rev. Clarence Rosenberger, director of church relations, attended the quadrennial National Youth Conferences, Church of the Brethren, at Cornell University. Over 3,000 young people were present.

Juniata students are again tutoring the underprivileged and neglected children of Huntingdon in a program of the Juniata Christian Fellowship and the Salvation Army of Huntingdon. Nancy Pentland '68, chairman said the "kids have a lot of needs—academic, spiritual and social."

The semi-annual meeting of the Pennsylvania College Admissions Officers at Lehigh University, September 22nd, was attended by Juniata staff members Richard Kimmey, director of admissions; Thomas Snyder, assistant director and Robert Doyle, director of placement and financial aid.
